Love and obedience to heaven (Colossians 3: 18-4: 1)

Praise God: praise can be customized to meet SG needs

- When you humbly serve the Lord (chapter 212)

Focus: when we love and obey each other, heaven comes to our homes and society.

Opening your heart Open your heart by briefly sharing a week's life, QT, and a thank you title.

Opening with Word Read Colossians 3: 18-4: 1 together.

Understanding the background:

Paul encourages the Saints who believe in Christ as Lord to pursue the above things: The saints must be renewed constantly in the image of God as a person who has taken away the old man and has been dressed in the new man, regardless of race, sex, or status. The saints in the new ones should resemble the character of Christ, accept them with love, and strive for the peace of the community. The grace of the Word is abundant, teaching and exhorting each other, and daily praise and thanksgiving must be overflowing life. Paul then follows the role of husband and wife, parents and children in the home, and encourages them to play a role of servant and master in society.

> Share the Word:

1-1. Observation and Meditation How does Paul encourage the Saints to treat each other as husbands and wives, parents, and children at home? (3: 18-21)

1-2. Applying and Sharing: What part of the relationship between husband, wife, and parents should be restored and changed in our home?

2-1. Observation and Meditation: How should we treat the masters of the flesh and the masters each of the servants? (3: 22-4: 1)

2-2. Applying and Sharing: I am a respectable boss, what kind of employee do I want to work with? What causes conflict in my workplace?

> Digesting the Word:

The secret of a mature relationship is to obey and love like Jesus, the "pattern of obedience" and "the pattern of love," which he loved until the end, and the husband and wife, parents and children obey each other first. When you love, you can become a family of heavenly saints. You should not be trivial about anything, but be faithful to the Lord. The reward you receive for the success of the world is lost when the tent of the earth falls (2 Corinthians 5: 1) However, it is an everlasting reward to serve the Lord. Those who remember that there is a master in heaven can treat any adversary in a respectful and fair manner, without being deceived.

Praying through the Word: Let us follow and obey the order given at home and at work, and serve the people as the Lord, so that the relationship of family and society can be restored.

Words to implant in Your Heart: "Whatever you do, do it with all your heart, as you would with the Lord, and not with men" (Colossians 3:23)
